Hager Design turns technical products into familiar friends.

International designer Erwin van Handenhoven has been working with Hager since 2000 and his designs have repeatedly won international design awards. Erwin became the Product Design Director of Hager Group in 2013, focusing on shaping the future of Hager products and brands, making Hager design an international vane.

Before we start designing a new product, we think about the people it is going to serve. Will it assist or entertain, observe or protect, save time or save energy? Ideally, whatever it does, users will feel it is a reliable "friend". We need to know how to connect with people on an emotional level, to ensure that in return they feel connected to our products.

Design links exquisite emotions to great usability and quality. How to illustrate this better than through this new Hager range? I designed it with special care to become a real trendsetter for good taste. We know that the Asian continent is constantly raising its design sensibility and quality expectations. It is exciting to create in this particular context where tradition and change operate together. This new design range will upgrade the standard of living in a clearly visible way. Hope you enjoy it as much as I do.

One family

The world is changing, and we are changing with it. As a family company, we have grown steadily over the last sixty years to become a reliable partner to expert technicians and electrical wholesalers around the world. All while remaining true to ourselves and to our values. And so we continue today, with a number of well-known brands – each with their own distinctive strengths – working together under the Hager Group umbrella.

Hager Forum in Obernai, France, is a place where we can work with customers and partners to shape the future. That makes it a perfect symbol of the innovative power of Hager Group.

Your trust

As a partner and customer, you can choose from the entire range of products and services offered by every member of our brand family. Our new corporate image highlights our shared strengths even more clearly. From now on, each of our brands will be easily recognisable as a 'Member of Hager Group'. The new corporate image also involves some colour and design changes. Our core promise remains the same: we will always work with you to succeed together.

Our strengths

We have huge opportunities ahead. The upcoming modernisation of existing buildings, intelligent building technology, digital services, new energy sources and technologies – all of this opens up new, exciting potential for you and for us. At the same time, business requirements are becoming more and more complex. That's why it's so important for you to have Hager Group specialists supporting you with all of their expertise. Together, we are stronger. Together, we will overcome the complex challenges of our time with simple, impressive solutions – just as we have been doing for the last six decades.
